The appearance of "Inside the Blue Shirt" at the commencement of the 1947-48 season marked the first practical effort on the part of any hockey organization to present in compact and attractive form the history of the club, the achievements of its teams and the exploits and records of its "greats," past and present.

Here for the first time was presented within the covers of one small volume the concise and authentic story of the accomplishments of a great team — a team with a wealth of fine tradition behind it, backed by a record of solid achievement in its more than 20 years of existence. The war years with attendant tribulations had done much to dull the lustre of that record and it was probably fitting — certainly timely — that those who wore the club's colors and the loyal supporters should be reminded of those "brave days of old" when league championships and Stanley Cup victories were frequent and "Rangers" was a name to conjure with in the hockey world.

Whether from inspiration so induced or by mere coincidence, a remarkable insurgence did occur and the team went on to its finest performance since before the war.

Apart from its inspirational qualities, "Inside the Blue Shirt," with its wealth of factual and statistical data, was a superlative pioneering effort in the field of hockey literature. The painstaking and thorough research and the interesting and convenient method of presentation of the material have made it the "hockey bible" of Ranger fans, sportswriters and sportscasters, as well as a master model for publications of like character.

In this second edition, Editor Stan Saplin has added new and valuable features. Most prominent among these is the addition of the complete record of "games played" by every man who has worn the blue shirt for the club since its inception. Here is new material with which ardent Ranger fans will be enabled to revive memories which have been clouded by time.

"Inside the Blue Shirt" (second edition) is the product of a patient industrious researcher and a talented historian. His efforts reflect great credit to himself and the New York Rangers Hockey Club. This is a notable addition to the literature of the World's Fastest Game.

Herbert William (Buddy) O'Connor, pictured on the cover, was the hockey player of the year in 1947-48. At the close of season's play, the committees designated by the National Hockey League to award special trophies selected the great New York Rangers' center for the Hart Trophy as the most valuable player in the league and also chose him for the Lady Byng Trophy as the most gentlemanly and effective player. Never before had both trophies gone to the same player. Only once before had a player won any two trophies in one season. In that instance, however, Frank Brimsek of the Boston Bruins earned the Calder Trophy (limited to first year men) and the Vezina Trophy (limited to goalkeepers). Both O'Connor awards are open to all players. Buddy also was the runner-up for the National League's individual scoring championship, with 60 points.

The Third Ranger Era

By JOSEPH C. NICHOLS

New York Times

It is the firm thought among Ranger players and fans alike that the Blue Shirts are embarked on another era, one that could very well be described as the third era of the history of the club. And this idea is accompanied by the hope that the era will develop into what could be called the Golden Age of the Garden ice crew.

Joseph C. Nichols

The beginning of this new era occurred in the 1947-48 season, when the local skaters finally made the playoffs after six seasons that saw them shut out of the chance to engage in the post-season play for the Stanley Cup and its attendant honor, the hockey championship of the world. Every local follower of the sport knows of the fine job that Frank Boucher's men did in last season's playoff, even though they didn't get beyond the first round.

They were sent in against what was considered a strong Detroit Red Wing sextet, a team that "figured" to make the Broadway Blues look for the nearest exit as soon as the whistle called them into action. Indeed, so heavy was the sentiment among the Detroit fans in that direction that the attendance at the opening game in the Motor City was only about two-thirds of the capacity of the Olympia, a turn-out that reflected eloquently on the "sure thing" feeling of the sports-minded Detroit populace.

Whatever beliefs existed that the Rangers were to constitute a push-over for the Wings were dissipated in the first game in which the New Yorkers, though defeated, put up so courageous and forceful a battle as to cause some consternation in the ranks of the athletes guided by Tommy Ivan. There was no doubt in the mind of anyone who saw the game that it would have gone to the Rangers if they had at their command the full service of their injured defensemen, Bill Moe and Frankie Eddolls.

As went the first clash, so went the series. New York did manage to snare two of the games, and in so doing demoralized the Wings so completely that they, themselves, were transformed into pushovers when they played the Toronto Maple Leafs in the final round.

Toronto's success, incidentally, made of Boucher a double-runnered prophet. For Frank picked the Leafs to win the championship, even as he had, before the season started, picked the finish of the National Hockey League race in exact order, namely: Toronto, Detroit, Boston, New York, Montreal and Chicago.

It was Frank's maneuvering of the Rangers into fourth place that set off the signal for the "Third Ranger Era." A description of the previous cycles, naturally, is in order.

And we'll take first things first. There was the original band of Rangers, that now legendary crew that included Bill and Bun Cook, Boucher, Ching Johnson, Murray Murdoch and Taffy Abel, to name a few. What a power this club was in the fledgling days of the expanded National League! Playoff berths were commonplace to them, and their achievement in winning the Stanley Cup in 1928, when all their final games were played on foreign ice, and when their then manager, Garden vice-president Lester Patrick, made his dramatic substitute appearance in goal in one of the clashes, will always rank high among the dramatic annals of sport.

One Stanley Cup was not enough for this group. Not at all. With virtually the same key men in operation, and with Lester Patrick still at the helm, the Blue Shirts swept on to the title again in 1932-33. Their victims were the Toronto Maple Leafs, on whom they gained some measure of vengeance for a defeat in the final round of the previous year's series.

Time, as it has a habit of doing, caught up with our heroes of the First Era, but Lester Patrick built with an eye to just such a contingency. While the club was a reasonably strong one from 1933 on, it did not immediately break into Stanley Cup contention. But there were players under Patrick who were gradually being fused into a unit that became, in the campaign of 1939-40, the representative of the Second Ranger Era. This was the phase of the Rangers' existence in which such standout hockey names as Neil Colville, Mac Colville, Lynn Patrick, Phil Watson and Bryan Hextall were to be found.

These stalwarts managed to bring the Stanley Cup to New York as the property of the Broadway Blues for the third time. They were a crack band, and even though they fell short of the championship niche the following season, they were definitely respected by all the other teams in the league. It seemed certain that so able a group of skaters would gather in one more championship before superannuation set in, but more important things, such as the winning of World War II, intervened. This second era ended abruptly when virtually all the key men were called to arms.

Through the war the Rangers dressed teams, of course, but that's about all one can say for them. The material at hand was indeed sparse, and the fortunes of the club fell so low that it were best to skim over the period—we can't call THAT an era—as quickly as possible.

With the end of the international fighting, however, the picture changed. By trading and developing, Boucher, who succeeded Lester Patrick, brought together another representative Ranger group. It came out of the wilderness to make the playoff last season, and has every intention of doing better this year. And we now nominate Buddy O'Connor, Tony Leswick, Charley Rayner, Frankie Eddolls and Don Raleigh and their colleagues as the representatives of the New York Rangers in the club's Third Era.

Andy Lopez, ace Acme photographer, made the photo of Bill Moe bodychecking Gaye Stewart into an upside down hockey player. The picture has earned many prizes. It won honors as the best hockey picture of the year in the annual Madison Square Garden competition; took honorable mention in the Miami Press Photographers contest; gained place as one of the pictures-of-the-year in "Best Sport Stories 1948," published by Dutton.

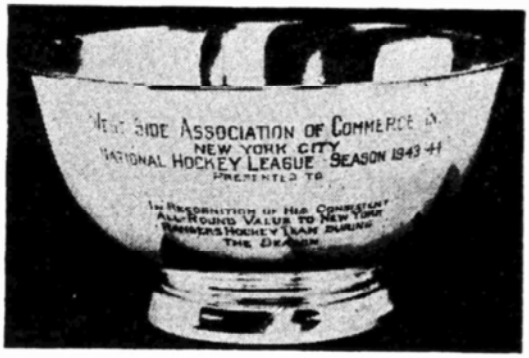
West Side Association Trophy

Buddy O'Connor, who made the acquisition of cups something of a hobby last season, was the unanimous choice of the New York Hockey Writers Association for the West Side Association Trophy as the "most valuable Ranger" in regular season play. The West Side Association of Commerce places a sterling silver bowl in competition each year and presents a U. S. Savings Bond to the winner, along with the award.

The winners since the trophy originally was offered in 1941:

1941-42: Lynn Patrick
1942-43: Lynn Patrick
1943-44: Tie, Ott Heller and Bryan Hextall
1944-45: Ab DeMarco
1945-46: Chuck Rayner
1946-47: Chuck Rayner
1947-48: Buddy O'Connor



William J. Macbeth Trophy

The William J. Macbeth Memorial Trophy was returned to competition last year by the New York Hockey Writers Association.

Under the new terms of the award, the Macbeth Cup is given to the "most valuable Ranger" in playoff competition. The trophy honors the late "Bunk" Macbeth who was the first sportswriter to cover professional hockey in New York. He died in August of 1937.

Under its old standards, the trophy went to New York's intra-city champions for seven years from 1937-38 through 1941-42. The Rangers took possession every year.

The sterling silver Macbeth Cup is a permanent trophy. Each year the winner's name is inscribed on the base and he receives a wrist watch, properly engraved. In year when the Rangers fail to land in the play-offs, the trophy will remain idle.

Phil Watson, the veteran forward who ended his playing days in the '48 Stanley Cup series against the Detroit Red Wings, was the first Macbeth winner last April.

The Garden's Longest Game

By BRUCE JACOBS

Editor, Sport Life Magazine

It is eleven seasons since Gotham hockey fans thrilled to the longest game ever played at Madison Square Garden, a contest which couldn't have been more adaptable to drama had a script been written in advance by Alfred Hitchcock. It was a natural — and somehow it seems fitting that this action-packed evening should be remembered in putting together any history of the New York Rangers Hockey Club.

Bruce Jacobs

It was on the night of March 28, 1938, that Lester Patrick's team kept this date with hockey destiny. And this was the dramatic situation which existed as the teams prepared to do battle:

It was the deciding game of a first-round Stanley Cup series bringing together the Rangers and their erstwhile rivals, the New York Americans. By dawn on the 28th lines had started to form outside the balcony ticket windows on 49th and 50th Streets. The gallery was packed long before the teams skated out.

The sell-out crowd cheered lustily when the Rangers and Amerks piled onto the arena surface headed by their respective goalies—little Davey Kerr for Lester Patrick's team, massive Earl Robertson for Red Dutton's Amerks.

In the press box a sportswriter looked at the Garden clock and idly checked his watch. It was just 8:30. It wasn't until nearly five hours later, at close to 1:30 a.m., that the scribe, composing his copy with an exhilarated sort of weariness, typed out the final paragraphs—the words which told the hockey world about an epic contest.

The final score—3-2 in favor of the Americans—was almost incidental—so much great hockey had been crammed into over 120 exciting minutes of pulse-rushing action.

The Rangers started off by grabbing a 2-0 lead in the second stanza. The red light flashed twice as first Alex Shibicky and then Bryan Hextall whipped the disc past Robertson.

Some two-and-a-half hours later a gentleman who had departed while the score was 2-0 settled himself on a stool in a Broadway bistro and idly asked a newcomer: "How'da the game wind up?"

"Wind up?" the other replied. "Why they're still playin' — the score's 2-2!"

The first gentleman grabbed his hat, dashed back to the Garden, and was back in his seat in time for the climax to the evening's fun.

Trailing 2-0 in the second Red Dutton's team had staged a great comeback. Lorne Carr tallied the Amerks' first goal and then Dutton put five forwards on ice and the old veteran Nels Stewart came through for him with the goal which knotted the count.

After that the two teams settled down to a long scoreless duel featured by razor-sharp defensive play. The crowd buzzed with excitement in anticipation of the second overtime struggle of the series.

Up and down the ice they surged in the first overtime period—but no goal was scored. The pressure was terrific. This was sudden-death hockey and any goal was the winning goal—with a trip to Chicago for the Stanley Cup finals in the balance.

To the grandstanders it was almost unbelievable — but neither team could mount a successful scoring drive in the second overtime session either. Surprisingly few departed by midnight even though it appeared the game might go on indefinitely. Here and there spectators rushed out to the lobby refreshment stands—which finally ran out of food—but most of the huge crowd was on hand when the end came.

The third overtime session was a thriller. First, Joe Jerwa, an Amerks' defenseman, hit the goalpost in front of the Ranger nets and Ott Heller grabbed the puck in his mitts after the rebound. Referee Bert McCafferty called for a penalty shot but Chief Referee Ag Smith ruled that Heller was the prescribed ten feet away from the goal mouth.

When the hubbub subsided and action renewed the Rangers' Cecil Dillon made a solo dash that looked like a sure thing, but Goalie Robertson took it off his pads. Then Sweeney Schriner of the Amerks took a perfect pass from Art Chapman, but in his haste he hoisted the puck high over Davey Kerr's head —and the third overtime session ended.

The two teams came tearing out for the fourth extra session and took up where they stoppped in the third. It was slam-bang hockey, and at the 40-second mark Lorne Carr smashed through and worked the payoff marker past Kerr.

The decision might have been different—in fact, the contest might never have gone into overtime, at all—had an impetuous female fan had her way. Until the police stepped in to bring the fair miss under control, she stormed by a surprised goal judge and pressed the red light buzzer when, in her opinion, the Blues scored a goal in the first period. The goal judge, Charles Porteous of Montreal, nearly swooned . . . players wrangled . . . and Referees Bert McCaffery and Ag Smith had a merry time restoring order.

At any rate, the goal didn't count —and what was to become an ice marathon proceeded on its course.

In the "brief" three-game set the Rangers and Americans had battled through better than 260 minutes all told—nearly enough playing time for five regulation NHL games!

In his second year in command of the Rangers principal farm club, Lynn Patrick led a youthful New Haven Rambler sextet to second place in the Eastern Division AHL championship race and then capped a highly successful season by piloting his charges into the semi-finals of the playoffs. It was the first time New Haven had advanced that far in post-season warfare.

Nine of Patrick's mainstays were youngsters up from the New York Rovers. Duncan Fisher, right winger who didn't miss a game all year, came to the Ramblers from junior amateur ranks. Ken Davies led the club in scoring with 72 points and was third in the balloting for the league's rookie of the year award. Ott Heller, the great defenseman who has been playing hockey since before some of his teammates were born, was named to the AHL All-Stars. Davies, who scored 29 goals, distinguished himself by scoring four in one game.

Trainer.....Al Scheuneman

Clint Smith, a star center with the New York Rangers in his major league playing career, begins a new regime with the Saints this season, taking over the coaching reins relinquished by Muzz Patrick, who moved on to the Tacoma Rockets of the Pacific Coast League. Smith was playing-coach of the Tulsa Oilers of the U. S. League last year and won the loop's most valuable player award.

The 1947-48 St. Paul sextet played .500 hockey, winning and losing 30 games, with six other contests ending in draws. Gino Rozzini, with 22 goals and 60 assists from his pivot position, led the club in scoring with 82, the fifth highest point total in the league. At season's end, Hal Brown, fleet forward, was named All-U. S. League right wing, while Lloyd Ailsby made the second All-Star team at defense.

The Rovers of 1947-48 perhaps set new records for keeping busy. They operated, as before, in the Eastern League, but in addition they played a full 48-game schedule in the tough Quebec Senior League. At year's end, the Red Shirts met the Toldeo Mercurys for the championship of the Amateur Hockey Association of the United States, losing out in the fifth and final game of a best three-out-of-five series. In the Quebec loop playoffs, the Rovers were eliminated by the Valleyfield Braves.

Larry (King) Kwong, the only player of Chinese ancestry in organized hockey, was the club's high scorer with 76 points.

During the playoffs with Valleyfield, Freddie Metcalfe, popular Rover coach, suffered a heart attack and was hospitalized for several weeks. It has been necessary for him to relinquish his coaching chores, although he remains with the Ranger organization as a scout. The Rovers won the EAHL championship twice in Metcalfe's regime.

The Blue Shirt family extends to the Far West this year as the result of arrangements which affiliate the Tacoma Rockets with the New York Rangers as a farm team.

Coincidental with the inauguration of the working agreement with the Rangers, Murray Patrick makes his debut as general manager and coach of the Rockets. The popular Muzz moved on to Tacoma from St. Paul, where he piloted the Saints for two years.

The Pacific Coast League turned professional this year after operating for four years as an amateur loop. Tacoma was the runner-up for the Northern Division championship last season.

LETHBRIDGE NATIVE SONS

of the

Alberta Junior Hockey Association

(Sponsored by the St. Paul Saints)

Home Rink. . . . . Lethbridge Arena, Lethbridge, Alba.

Manager .....Ed Bruchet Coach .....Scotty Munro

One of the strongest junior teams in Canada, the Lethbridge Native Sons in 1947-48 were within one game of moving into the Memorial Cup final when they were set back by the Port Arthur West End Bruins.

It is unlikely another sextet will come along in junior circles for many years to equal the Native Sons' scoring achievements of last season. During the regular campaign, they lost only four of 40 games, two to senior teams and the others each by one-goal margins. Their overall record, playoffs included, was 50 victories and three ties in 60 games. They scored 432 goals for an average of 6.9 per game, allowed opponents only 180, or 2.9 per game.

Bill Ramsden, slim 20-year-old left wing who one day soon may be skating with the Rangers, set what is probably an all-time junior Canadian record by scoring 104 goals and 57 assists for 161 points. He played in 61 league, exhibition and playoff games.

Although the combined leadership of Al Hebert and Herky Carrie has brought nine championships to the Verdun Cyclones in the last twelve seasons, the 1947-48 sextet had to be content with second place in the Southern Division of the Quebec Junior Hockey Association race. The Cyclones advanced to the semi-finals of the playoffs, in which round they were turned back by Three Rivers, three games to two.

George Hotte nosed out Jean Renaud by one point for individual scoring honors with 38, although the latter was distinguished as the only 20-goal player on the squad.

A highlight of the season was an exhibition game in New York's Madison Square Garden against the New York Metropolitans, also affiliated with the Rangers. Verdun outclassed the New Yorkers, 7 to 2, with little Real Boileau scoring twice. Gump Worsley of the Cyclones starred in the nets.

Operating without a home rink last season, the Guelph Biltmores probably were the most traveled sextet in the ten-team Ontario loop, playing all home games in Galt, Ont. That condition, plus a switch in coaches in mid-season, worked to the disadvantage of the Biltmores and they finished out of playoff contention. Bill Sherry, who relieved Bobby Bauer as coach, will be in command this season, with the club scheduled to play in its own new rink in Guelph.

Stan McClellan headed the Guelph scoring parade, tallying 44 points, two more than Johnny Flynn and Neil Gordon, who tied for second place. Lorne Ferguson was the top sniper of the team, with 27 goals, while Gordon's 29 assists were high for the year. Gene Martin was the leading culprit, drawing 110 minutes in penalties.

Averaging a fraction under seven goals per game, the Lake Placid Roamers last year won 28 and tied four of 42 contests, and won the Lake Placid-Montreal International League championship. Invited to participate in the Junior Open Championship of the Amateur Hockey Association of the United States, the Roamers advanced to the final round before they were turned back by a one-goal margin by the Detroit Hettche sextet. Ron Limoges, with 38 goals and 35 assists, was the club's high scorer.

Jack Klemens, a New Yorker who was a member of the New York Rovers 1941-42 Eastern League championship club, has been appointed manager and coach of this year's team.

Composed exclusively of New York boys, most of whom gained their earlier experience as members of the Metropolitan League, the New York Mets were somewhat outclassed in their first attempt at inter-city competition in 1947-48, when they participated in the six-team Atlantic Hockey League. Pitted against older players for the most part, the Mets, whose age limit is 21, had only one tie against eight defeats until their closing game of the year when they turned back the Boston Junpics. With a better balance among the clubs this year, Manager Tommy Thompson and Coach Bob Elias were expecting to reach for a higher berth in the league standings this winter.

RANGER THUMBNAILS 1948-49

Clint Albright, long, lean and studious looking, is a welcome addition to the ranks of the left wingers on the Blue Shirts this season. Until well into the training season, Clint was not counted upon by the Rangers for it was his intention to complete his mechanical engineering studies at the University of Manitoba. When he decided to delay his education in order to play big league hockey, he plugged an important offensive post on the club. Clint's a smooth and exceptionally clever stickhandler who played the last two seasons with the Winnipeg Reos, helping them reach the Western Canada senior finals both seasons. The previous year he was the star of the Winnipeg Monarchs, a junior club which won the Dominion's Memorial Cup. During the Cup series he suffered a leg injury which required eight stitches. Clint missed the next game and his team lost. He then returned to action and the Monarchs won the next two tilts and took the championship. Clint's one of the few men who wear glasses while in action.

Neil Colville was an amateur with the Crescents (later renamed the Rovers) back in '35 when the great Nels Stewart said, "There's a boy with hockey brains." Time has proven how wise a prophet was Stewart. Each year they "bury" Colville—yet each year he's back, giving invaluable service to the Rangers. Blessed with unusual rink savvy, the 34-year-old silver-thatched Blue Shirt captain last season made the second All-League team at defense. At year's end, Coach Chuck Conacher of the Black Hawks offered the unsolicited comment that in his eyes Colville was the most valuable player in the NHL. Neil was a center when he broke in as a Ranger regular in '36. He teamed with his brother, Mac, and Alex Shibicky to form one of the game's best forward lines. After returning from war duty, Neil found he had lost the speed to play up front, shifted to the backline and has been there since.

Frank Eddolls doesn't have the bulk most big league defensemen tote around—but his all-around technique more than makes up for size. He proved that conclusively when in his first campaign with the Rangers last year he played an important role in the team's successful quest for a playoff berth. An ice general who keeps up a running line of chatter when he's in action, Frank was obtained in the summer of '47 from the Montreal Canadiens, who had relegated him to their Buffalo farm club for two seasons. In both those campaigns, however — 1945-46 and 1946-47 — the Frenchmen called on the handsome Eddolls to plug defensive holes in their line-up for Stanley Cup games and he played brilliantly. An operation last summer corrected a troublesome elbow condition but a severed tendon suffered in an auto accident in October hospitalized Frank just as the season got underway.

Duncan Fisher drew rave notices from Frank Boucher when the Ranger mentor saw the Regina youngster perform with a junior amateur club late in the 1946-47 season. Frank flatly declared Dunk would more than make the grade with the Rangers when he was ready . . . and that he wasn't much more than a season away. The rosy-cheeked youngster put in one season with the New Haven Ramblers and signaled his transition from junior amateur ranks to fast minor league circles by shooting 25 goals and contributing to 34 others with his accurate passes. Ranger fans got a preview of the youngster last April when he took over a right wing slot with the Blues in the final playoff game and passed to Don Raleigh for the first New York goal. Even so crafty a defenseman as Ott Heller admits he was unable to pin the hustling and elusive Fisher against the boards once during scrimmages throughout the course of the entire season last year. Only 21 last summer, little Dunk has a long and bright future before him in big league hockey.

Alex Kaleta, an invaluable all around forward who operates with equal skill from either wing—or from the center slot—was a welcome addition to the ranks of the Blue Shirts when he came into the fold just as the season opened. Their ranks depleted by the automobile accident which hospitalized four stars just as the campaign was at hand, the Rangers looked to the big, rawboned Kaleta to fill in at any forward post at which he might be needed. Alex, along with Emile (The Cat) Francis, became Ranger property in a trade which sent Sugar Jim Henry to Chicago. In four seasons with the Hawks, Kaleta averaged 36 points. He's shifty and a crafty stickhandler. Of Russian-Ukrainian descent, he's a good-natured lad who helps keep team morale high. Alex grew up in the heart of Western Canada's coal mining belt. He played amateur hockey in Lethbridge, Calgary and Regina before joining the Hawks in 1941-42, skipping minor league play. He spent three years in the Canadian Army, returning in 1945-46 to enjoy his best scoring year. That season he scored 46 points. His top goal scoring year was 1946-47 when he caged 24.

Eddie Kullman almost slipped out of the Rangers' hands in the fall of '47 and had he done so, hockey would have lost one of its best backchecking forwards. Up from senior amateur ranks (he scored 102 points for Portland in 60 games the year before), the RCAF veteran was determined to play big league hockey—"or nothin'." With only days to go before the season began, Frank Boucher persuaded Eddie to start the year with New Haven. In just a matter of weeks, the chunky right wing had outgrown the AHL, however, and had won a place on a Ranger forward line with Edgar Laprade and Tony Leswick. Eddie's no weakling offensively, boasting a 32-point season his first year up. He was mentioned prominently all year as a candidate for the rookie award which went to Jimmy McFadden of the Red Wings. He ran a streak of a goal-per-game for five games last winter. The father of a boy, 2½, he lives in his native Winnipeg and works for his father's fuel company in the offseason.

Edgar Laprade probably would win a poll, if one were taken, to determine the "hockey players' hockey player." Popular and respected in every rink in the league, he's one of the most skilled stickhandlers in the business, exceedingly proficient at breaking up an enemy offensive. Since entering the league in 1945-46, his scoring has steadily increased. He tallied 34 points in his freshman year, winning the Calder Cup that season, incidentally; then hit for 40 in 1946-47, and for 47 last year to land in 12th spot in the NHL standings. An innkeeper in Port Arthur during the summer, Edgar was particularly hot down the homestretch last season when he tallied 21 points in the last 18 games. The 160-pound center compiled a 12-game streak during this stretch in which he scored a goal and/or an assist each time out. Quiet and soft-spoken on and off the ice, Edgar has drawn but 16 minutes in penalties in three years. His 34 assists last year represented the third highest total in the league.

Tony Leswick, the little dynamo, is one of the leading goal-snipers in the National League. This rough and tough left wing averaged 22 per season in three campaigns with the Rangers and, only 25 years old, looks forward to raising that mark before he hangs up his skates. Scrappy and fast, Tony's thrilling exploits—offensively and defensively—often brings the fans to their feet cheering. A boxing enthusiast, he's not afraid to mix it on the ice and tussles whether his opponent is big or small, despite his mere 5′ 6½″. He and Howie Meeker of the Maple Leafs feuded throughout the 1947-48 season. Tony and Eddie Laprade form one of the league's top penalty-chasing duos. Leswick was with the Cleveland Barons before the war, hooked on with the Rangers after service in the Canadian Navy. He's a brother of the veteran Pete Leswick, now an American League star. The father of two boys, Tony opened a dry cleaning establishment in Vancouver, B. C., last summer.

Pentti Lund becomes the fifth European-born stickhandler to don the Ranger Blue Shirt since the club was organized 22 years ago. Lund is Finland's contribution to the hockey world. He was born in Helsinki and lived there until he was six. Port Arthur, Ont., is now the Lund home. Pentti first attracted attention of New York fans in 1946-47 when, as a member of the Boston Olympics, he made several appearances in the Garden to face the Rovers. Playing right wing on a line with Bobby Schnurr and Ronnie Rowe, Pentti totaled 49 goals and 43 assists for 92 points, enough to win the Eastern League scoring championship. Last year he was moved up to the Hershey Bears by the Boston Bruins, from whom the Rangers obtained Lund in trade, and he scored 62 points, shooting 26 goals. Big and fast—he's 6′ and 190 pounds—Lund is one of the most promising youngsters hitting the NHL this year. Pentti got into two Stanley Cup games with the Bruins last April. His kid brother, Conrad, is with the Indianapolis Caps.

Nick Mickoski played for three clubs in the Ranger organization last year—but every shift was upward so there was no squawk forthcoming from Big Nick. He opened the campaign with the Rovers, scoring 56 points in 35 games, was promoted to the New Haven Ramblers and accounted for 27 points in 22 games. With injuries hobbling the Rangers in Stanley Cup action, the 20-year-old left wing was tossed into service against the Red Wings and he performed like an old pro. Nick played on a championship bantam club his first year in organized hockey. He was the leading scorer in a fast junior league for two seasons and was on his way to a third crown when he joined the Rovers in Jan. '47. Nick, now 185 pounds and 6′ 1″ tall, hasn't stopped growing. Like Tony Leswick, he's of Ukranian descent. Nick celebrates his birthday on Pearl Harbor Day. He's the tallest player on the Ranger roster.

Bill Moe remains the only native American on the Rangers and with the passing of Johnny Mariucci from the Black Hawks, one of only two American born and raised players in the NHL. Bill's return to action this year fooled many who thought the double-fractured vertebra he sustained in the playoffs last March meant the end of his hockey career. He recovered sufficiently to swing a golf club by mid-summer and was ready then to renew spilling onrushing forwards with his jarring, crouching bodychecks which usually result in the opponent somersaulting through space. The Rangers had to give four players to the Hershey Bears to beat out other big league clubs for his services after Bill was voted the outstanding defenseman in the American League in 1943-44. He's been a durable and reliable backliner for the Blues, rarely missing more than a game or two a season. He assisted on 15 goals last year—a total exceeded by only two other defensemen in the league. Bill owns an ice plant at home in Mound, Minn. Has a good radio voice and would like to break into sportscasting when his playing days are over.

Elwin Morris joins the Rangers this season, along with Wally Stanowski, in the trade that sent Gardner, Trudell and Juzda to the Maple Leafs. Two years ago, when Frank Boucher was searching the trading markets for a defenseman, the Ranger manager said "Frank Eddolls and Moe Morris are the two best defensemen outside the National League." Eddolls was then with Buffalo and Morris with Pittsburgh. In '47, Boucher acquired Eddolls' services and he was rewarded with fine defense work on the part of the Montreal lad. Now it is Morris' turn. Elwin spent three seasons with the Maple Leafs, tallying 12 goals and 21 assists in his rookie year, before being sent to Pittsburgh where he played for the last two years. Built along Eddolls' lines, he is an excellent pokechecker, a fast skater and a heady player. Forwards don't get around him too easily. He's a battler every minute he's on the ice.

Buddy O'Connor, away from the rink, is one of mildest persons in hockey. On the ice, however, he proves to be one of the greatest nuisances to opposing defensemen and to goaltenders whom he fools constantly. He has averaged better than 42 points a year in seven seasons in the NHL and last year he hit his alltime high of 60, one short of the top in the league. He scored a goal and/or an assist in 43 of the 60 games on the schedule, one of the many reasons he was voted the winner of the Hart Trophy as the most valuable player in the league. Winning the Lady Byng Trophy, as well, the Montreal Irishman became the first player ever to annex both these cups. Although he had always been acknowledged as one of the most crafty center men in the game, it was not until he shifted from the Canadiens to the Rangers in '47 that Buddy came into his own as one of the great stars of hockey. He's the lightest player in the league at 142 pounds. The father of two girls and a boy, Buddy is a salesman for a commercial stationery firm in the summer.

Don Raleigh, whose teammates call him "Mr. Bones", looks as though one hard bodycheck would blow him to pieces. Yet he's been hit by the roughest and toughest backliners in the business and has shown no ill effects. Although he had a brief whirl with the Rangers back in '43, Don actually began pro hockey seriously when he joined the Rangers last November, shortly after the season began. In his fourth game he set a league speed record when he assisted on three goals in 81 seconds. In another brilliant performance later, Mr. Bones scored four goals in one game, the entire Ranger output for the night. A tall bony lad, even his 150 pounds are deceiving. Ready for the showers after a game, he looks about 135. Only 22, he's expected to leave a brilliant reputation behind when he concludes what should be a lengthy NHL career. Together with Buddy O'Connor and Edgar Laprade, he gives the Rangers the strongest center trio in the loop. Don had 33 points last season, the third best performance by a rookie.

Chuck Rayner, the NHL shutout king in 1946-47, never did get underway in high gear last year. A puck fired off the stick of Jack Crawford of the Bruins early in November caused a double fracture of his right cheek bone and Chuck went to the sidelines, while Sugar Jim Henry, his sidekick and longtime goaltending foe, took over. He came back to tend the nets in the next-to-last game of the season, a clash in which the Blues clinched their playoff berth, and then protected the nets during the playoffs. He's the most spectacular goalie in the league, frequently thrilling the crowds by coming away out of his nets to take part in a play. Discovered by Red Dutton in the late 30's, Chuck came to the Rangers when the Amerks disbanded. He and Henry were foes in junior hockey, opposed each other again when he came into the league and they battled for the same Ranger job each year until Jim was traded to Chicago shortly before the current season began.

Freddie Shero began the 1947-48 campaign with the Rangers but it was quickly decided that he had been brought up to the big league prematurely. He was shipped to St. Paul for further seasoning and when he returned in time for the playoffs, it was agreed by all who saw him in action that he was ready. One of the qualities he lacked earlier, aggressiveness, stood out clearly when Jack Stewart, the Red Wings' tough veteran, attempted to mess him up a bit. Although the brief feud never got to the blow-throwing stage, Freddie—a former Manitoba amateur champ—would have held his own in that regard, as well as he did with bodychecks. Solidly built, Fred's a serious lad who gives plenty of brain and brawn to his duties on the ice. Boxing is one of his hobbies, the other being the violin. Fred broke in with the Rovers when he was 18. He left hockey for the Navy, came back to do two more years with the Red Shirts before beginning to climb up the hockey ladder last year.

Eddie Slowinski looks more the part of a defenseman than he does a right wing. A big lad whose toughest job is fighting a tendency to add weight, he was handicapped last season by excessive poundage. While Frank Boucher was in Winnipeg, Eddie's home town, early in September, he was greeted by a "slender" Slowinski, down to a fine 195 pounds and determined to stay there. Eddie had gone on a rigid conditioning schedule all summer. He's got a hard, deceptive shot on goal and generally it's the opposing defenseman who goes flying when he hits this bruising wing. Ed played with the Ottawa Commandos during the war and was a big factor in the team's acquisition of the Allan Cup. With the Ottawa Senators in 1946-47, the year before he joined the Rangers, Ed led the Quebec League in goals. A knee injury sustained in the first training camp drill this season sidelined the huge wing for a number of weeks.

Wally Stanowski, sometimes termed the "whirling dervish" of the ice lanes, has no peer in spectacular, rink-length rushing. Joining the Rangers this season after a lengthy and colorful stay with the Maple Leafs, Stanowski has many rinksiders wondering whether his career won't parallel Buddy O'Connor's. O'Connor became a NHL standout in his first year with the Blue Shirts after a long tenure with the Canadiens. An ankle injury slowed Stanowski down in his freshman year with the Leafs but a season later, 1940-41, he clicked in sensational style, scored seven goals and 14 assists for 21 points, and was selected as an All-Star defenseman. A year later, after a drab regular season, he came to life in the playoffs by notching two goals and assisting on eight others. Wally spent two years with the RCAF and when he returned his style of play was considered outmoded by the Toronto mentors and he was used sparingly. His new coach at the Rangers thinks otherwise and looks for big things from Whirling Wally.

Santa's with the Rangers

By STAN SAPLIN

You can search all the record books . . . study reserve lists . . . talk to scouts, coaches, players young and old . . . but you won't find any record of him nor anyone who recalls ever seeing him perform in a game.

Yet once each year, a feller known as Santa Claus climbs into the familiar Ranger blue shirt, gets out on the ice with the New York team and helps them win a game.

Nobody gets benched when Mr. Claus plays. Sure, the Blue Shirts are playing seven against six—but they've never been penalized by the referee nor censured by league headquarters.

He comes out the same evening each season—appropriately enough on Christmas Night. And, once he takes his stick in hand and skates into action, the Broadway Blues swing off to victory.

Since their inception in the fall of '26, the Rangers have been scheduled for 16 Christmas Night games. They've been beaten only once, away back in '28 and then by a narrow 1 to 0 margin. They've won 14 other December 25th engagements, seven by shutouts, and been tied once.

Tommy Ivan and his band of Red Wings fell before the seven-man Ranger squad last season, 2 to 0, in Detroit's own Olympia Stadium. The year before, Dick Irvin brought his Stanley Cup champion Montreal Canadiens into Madison Square Garden but they, too, found the strengthened opposition too tough, and left town sorrowfully on the short end of a 2-0 tally.

Back in 1943-44, when the war years had torn the Ranger line-up to shreds and the Blues had all they could do to ice a complete team, Santa didn't forget his usual stop. Although the New York sextet had its most dismal year, winning only six games all season, you can be certain their Noel night meeting was successful. The Toronto Maple Leafs were the victims on that occasion, losing 5 to 3.

Three of the shutout triumphs came in successive years. The Blues knocked off the old Amerks, 6 to 0, in '31, avenging their lone December 25th setback registered three years earlier. Twelve months later they took the Montreal Maroons, 2 to 0, and in '33 repeated against the Maroons, 3 to 0. Another blanking was recorded over the Boston Bruins, 1 to 0, in '38. The solitary clash that wound up deadlocked was with the Chicago Black Hawks in 1940.

How fine a defensive player is Santa is evidenced in total Christmas Night statistics, which reveal that the combined opposition has scored a mere 15 goals in 16 games . . . less than a goal a game.

The complete Christmas Night record follows:

Who's Who of the Rangers

A biographical record, complete with full NHL scoring records, for every man who has ever played for the New York Rangers from 1926-27 through 1947-48. As the result of extensive research, the number of games played by each Ranger in the seasons 1926-27 through 1940-41 has been compiled expressly for "Inside the Blue Shirt." These figures were not kept by the National Hockey League until 1941-42. Goaltender statistics in this "Who's Who" include only Ranger records.

I'LL TAKE HOCKEY ANY TIME!

By John Kieran

Editor, Information Please Almanac

I'm a fairly peaceful man, and an old-time baseball fan,
You can hear me yell when Heilman hits the ball;
And I howl when Ty Cobb stabs one, and I growl when Speaker grabs one,
And I roar when Babe Ruth's homer clears the wall.
But the diamond sport is quiet to that reeling rousing riot,
To a slashing game of hockey at its prime;
It's a shindig wild and gay; it's a battle served frappe;
Give me hockey, I'll take hockey any time!

Once, while crazy with the heat, I coughed up to buy a seat,
Just to see a pair of robbers grab a purse.
It was a clinch and stall and shove and "Please excuse my glove,"
Till I blessed them with a healthy Irish curse.
But for fighting, fast and free, grab your hat and come with me,
Sure the thing they call boxing is a crime,
And for ground and lofty whacking and enthusiastic smacking,
Give me hockey, I'll take hockey any time!

I've an ever-ready ear for a rousing football cheer,
And I love to see a half-back tackle low.
It's a really gorgeous sight when the boys begin to fight
With a touchdown only half a yard to go.
But take all the most exciting parts of football, baseball, fighting,
And then mix them up to make a game sublime,
Serve it up with lots of ice, you don't have to ask me twice,
Give me hockey, I'll take hockey any time!

Yes, for speed and pep and action, there is only one attraction,
You'll see knockouts there a dozen for a dime,
When the bright steel blades are ringing and the shinny sticks are swinging,
Give me hockey, I'll take hockey any time!

"Finest beer I ever tasted!"
